

Social Media Audit & Strategic Findings Report

1. Visual Fidelity & Production Clarity

Finding: Current video quality is often inconsistent or lacks high-definition clarity.

The Problem: In a fast-paced "scroll" environment, low-quality visuals signal a lack of professionalism. Potential clients are likely to scroll past our content because it does not visually reflect the high technical standards of our safety services.

The Solution: We must transition to HD/4K export standards using the Canva 2026 suite. Ensuring every video is crisp and professionally lit will immediately "stop the scroll" and establish us as a top-tier consultancy.

2. Lack of Mentor-Led Authority (The "Milly" Factor)

Finding: Our mentor, Milly Reginald, is currently absent from the video content.

The Problem: In the SHERQ industry, trust is built through expertise. Without seeing the business owner, the brand lacks a "Face of Authority," making the content feel less personal and less credible to senior decision-makers.

The Solution: We must produce Mentor-Led Demonstrations. I recommend a video format where Milly is actively seen monitoring or demonstrating tasks to her interns. Seeing the mentor guide the team provides the professional "stamp of approval" that clients look for.

3. Company Culture & "Fun" Engagement

Finding: The content is currently strictly technical, missing the "human" element of our team.

The Problem: Social media users connect with people, not just services. If the page is too serious, it feels robotic and fails to build a community.

The Solution: We should include videos of fun work activities and team-building moments. By using recent trending sounds and TikTok challenges adapted for a professional setting, we can show that Reginald SHERQ is a vibrant, modern place to work.

4. Daily Routine & Motivational Content

Finding: There is very little content showing the daily routine or the "why" behind our hard work.

The Problem: We are missing the chance to demonstrate the discipline and precision that goes into our safety audits and database management.

The Solution: We will launch a "Day in the Life" series featuring interns performing real-world tasks under Milly's supervision. Additionally, we will post weekly motivational content related to safety and professional growth to keep our audience inspired and engaged.

5. Metadata & Discoverability (Hashtag Strategy)

Finding: Our posts currently do not utilize hashtags or SEO-optimized descriptions.

The Problem: Without hashtags, our videos are invisible to the wider market. We are restricted to our current followers and are not being "seen" by the algorithms.

The Solution: We will implement a mandatory 3-Tier Hashtag Strategy (Industry, Service, and Branded) for every post to ensure we are appearing in the feeds of safety officers and business owners nationwide.
